YOUNG AMERICA IS REIGNING PRINCE OF PARENTS AND HOMES OBEY HIS MANDIDATE

So Muster They Their Forces to Enter the Lists Against All of a Generation to Come Into Power, in Best Baby Contest

EVERY CITY STRIVES FOR SUPREMACY

Child Study Is Reflected in Intelligent Response to the Call of the Competition for Honors of Southern California

In these days when Young America is the reigning prince—the autocrat of every house in which he is found, with all members of the family paying court to his infant charms, it is hard to realize that there was a time in the days of the Puritans when there was a great gulf between parents and children. Then it was a sin for a father to kiss his wife or his children on Sunday; then it was felt that the intimacy of comradeship which now obtains was incompatible with the discipline which parents should maintain and equally incompatible with the awed respect which the parent should inspire in the mind of the child.

Parents could not have experienced the joy in their offspring they have in this generation and it is small wonder the new world was so ready to throw off the yoke of a gloomy Puritanism.

Who could imagine a best baby contest in those days, although there must have been as much secret parental pride as now. It is safe to assume that in those days of low living and high thinking, when child welfare was not the study it is now, the babies were not as fine as they are today. Probably in no period of the world's history has child culture been practiced to the extent it is today. America has even gone the length of appropriating millions of dollars to conserve the children of other lands. This universal conservation of childhood is the reason why this contest is such a dazzling success. It is the hope of the Press that every last baby in Glendale, Eagle Rock, Burbank, Montrose, La Crescenta, Tujunga, the Atwater tract, the Parkdale tract, and all the outlying county territory that is tributary, will be listed and show the world what the best district in the world can produce in the way of babies, the most precious product the world has. Think what a record will be ours if we put it over to the extent we can put it over if we will all unite for the glory of the babies of the district.

Some very fine children have been entered within the past week, as the few here mentioned will show:

Ralph William Lee, who is a typical best baby, is 15 months old and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Lee of 724 East Windsor road, Glendale. He is absolutely healthy and Dr. Bibgy, child welfare expert, has pronounced him one of the finest babies she has ever seen. She has a big circle of baby acquaintances and Ralph William is one of her favorites. He is already beginning to exhibit many mechanical traits which gratifies his father, who has always been interested in mechanics. He hopes the son will be able to follow the career which has always beckoned to him in vain. Ralph William is a grandson of W. W. Lee, the Glendale banker.

The beautiful son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Williams of 464 West Harvard street, have been added to the list of best babies, and are entrants of whom any parents would have reason to be proud. Little Shela Williams, though but six years old, is in the second grade in school and is taking music lessons. She is very active, never still a minute, and is fond of animals.

Her brother, Ward Williams, who is younger, will enter kindergarten this fall. Both are large for their age and both have been adjudged perfectly formed by baby experts who have examined them.

PURCHASING MEN TASTE GLENDALE HOSPITALITY

Gather at Broadway Inn for Chicken Dinner and Speeches

The reception given yesterday noon to the purchasing agents of Northern California at Broadway Inn proved to be a regular old-time Glendale reception. The visitors proved to be a collection of live-wires, and their speeches radiated the enthusiasm and good-will felt.

These purchasing agents, who were the guests of the Los Angeles Purchasing Agents' association for several days, arrived in Glendale shortly before noon. They were greeted by a wonderful chicken dinner, served in true New York style by the proprietor of the Broadway Inn. During and shortly after the repast the speeches were given.

Among the local "high lights" who welcomed the visitors to Glendale were Mayor Robinson, Councilman Lapham and Secretary Rhoades of the chamber of commerce.

J. S. McQuiston, secretary of the entertainment committee of the Los Angeles Purchasings Agents' association, was responsible for bringing the northern purchasing agents to Glendale. His idea was to show the agents from the north just what a delightful place Glendale really is. Many of the visitors expressed themselves as being favorably surprised with Glendale. While they had heard of this city, they had no idea it was such an up-and-going place. Their stay here was brief and shortly after the dinner they were compelled to return to Los Angeles.

Monday morning the northern agents were driven in about 40 machines furnished by the Los Angeles association to the United Studios in Hollywood, where they were "pictured," after which they were carried over the beautiful Los Feliz road to Glendale. Following the dinner, the guests were driven through the street of this city, after which they were taken to Exposition Park, where the Exposition of Progress is being held, and at which place the northern agents had their headquarters during their stay in Southern California.

"I cannot thank the people of Glendale too much for the wonderful way they cared for the purchasing agents from the northern part of the state yesterday noon," said Mr. McQuiston, of 212 West Acacia street. "The dinner furnished by the Broadway Inn was a revelation and Glendale as a whole far exceeded the expectations of the visitors. They came here expecting to find the ordinary 'small town' stuff, but they received the regular 'big league' antics served up to them in a small city way. I thank the people of Glendale with all my heart for the wonderful way they took care of our visitors from the north."

Third Session of the League of Nations' Program

GENEVA, Sept. 5.—These are the chief questions for discussion to come before the third session of the league of nations:

1—World-wide disarmament.

2—Exetension of the Washington arms treaty to all nations.

3—Admission of Hungary and perhaps Germany, as a member of the league.

4—Suppression of opium and white slave traffic.

5—Granting mandates on former German colonies.

6—Canada's proposal to suppress the famous article "ten" of the league covenant.

YELLOW LINE COOPERATION IS ASSURED

P. L. Hatch of Local Line Reports Satisfactory Conference

TO MEET ALL TRAFFIC

Glendale Congratulated in Securing Connection; Hollywood Losing

P. L. Hatch, superintendent of the Glendale-Montrose railroad, and V. Haresnape, secretary-treasurer of the company, who visited Glendale this morning, report a conference with officials of the Los Angeles Railway in the presence of the superintendent of transportation in which these officials authorized the superintendent to work out with Mr. Hatch all details that would insure good service when the yellow car line is linked up with the Glendale-Montrose line.

"This means," said Mr. Haresnape, "that they are planning to take care of the traffic just as soon as they find out what it will require."

Mr. Hatch and Mr. Haresnape said that Glendale is to be congratulated on the prospect of securing this connection so naturally when Hollywood is right now petitioning the railroad commission to compel the Los Angeles railroad company to extend its line to that section.

COUNCIL INCLINED TO ACCEPT HAHN OFFER

Mayor Spencer Robinson Says Sale and Gift Seems Good

Mayor Spencer Robinson, when asked relative to the proposition to purchase additional land adjoining the Patterson Avenue park, said the members of the council are very favorable to the project and if a legal option is presented to them next Tuesday night to purchase 5 acres from Mr. Hahn for $10,000 and receive from him a gift of 8 acres in adition, $1000 to be paid in cash and the balance on or before five years at 6 per cent interest, the council wil laccept it.

Concerning another swimming pool to meet the need there, City Manager Reeves said he considered a more practical proposition would be to scatter the pools so they would more easily serve the entire city. His preference would be to make a swimming pool in the new Glendale-Verdugo park, where it could be fed from a living stream. He also expressed the opinion that a swimming pool should be built on the new high school campus where it could be supplied from the fine well and pumping plant on the campus.

SEEK EXTENSION OF INJUNCTION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Extension of the Daughtery injunction to bring within its scope all persons who give aid in any form to the 400,000 striking railroad shopmen was discussed by President Harding and his cabinet today.

Broadening of the injunction was declared by one cabinet member necessary to silent leaders of none-striking unions, who have continued to send public and private messages of support and sympathy to the shopmen's leaders ever since the injunction was issued.

Sharp differences of opinion prevail among cabinet members as to the extent to which the restrictive powers of the injunctions should be increased.

Two members were united to look with disfavor on extension. All were agreed, including the president, that caution should be necessary to avoid undue interference with the rights of free speech and a free press.

GLENDALE POSTAL SERVICE PLANS

Concerning postal service from the Glendale office, desired by the Grand View district and Verdugo Woodlands, Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson stated this morning the matter is well in hand and is being put through as rapidly as postoffice red tape will permit.

As reported some time ago, he and Mr. Hallett put in a lot of hard work going over all the routes and making a survey with a view to extending and improving the service. He expects, if his recommendations are approved by the department, and he has every reason to think they will be, that they will be effective by the middle of October. In the meantime those routes are under the control of the Los Angeles office, although the service starts from here. After the middle of October it is reasonably certain that they will be a part of the Glendale postoffice system and under the control of Postmaster Jackson.

AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION NEVER BEEN BETTER SAYS NATIONAL BANK EXPERTS

Farmers, However, Are Pessimistic as to the Outcome of the Market for Their Goods Because of Prevailing Strike Conditions

THE MARKETING SITUATION IS ABNORMAL

Difficult to Make Accurate Prediction as to Probable Financial Position to Producers or Dependents on Farming Sections Throughout Country

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5.—"From the standpoint of production, agricultural prospects in this district have never been better," according to the report just issued by the research department of the First National bank of Los Angeles, the Los Angeles Trust and Savings bank and the First Securities company, dealing with agricultural, livestock and banking conditions in the southern half of California on September first. "However," the report continues, "there is a tendency for agriculturists to be pessimistic with regard to marketing situation, inasmuch as the railroad strike has interfered with the movement of crops which are maturing at this time and has had a tendency to reduce prices very materially during the past month. A month ago, farmers were inclined to give little consideration to the strike, but they are now coming to feel that the returns on their 1922 production will be dependent in a large degree upon the railroad situation during the next few months.

"The entire marketing situation in this district is abnormal and the distributive processes have been very seriously interfered with, so that it is somewhat difficult to make an accurate prediction as to the probable financial position to agricultural producers or of those dependent upon agriculture sections following the marketing of this year's crops.

AGRICULTURE

Citrus Fruits—Oranges

"The market for oranges has been somewhat quiet during the past month and producers are commencing to feel the competition of fresh deciduous fruits, although, so far, this competition has had comparatively little effect on prices.

"Prices in eastern markets have dropped about 50 cents a box during the past month and are just a little better than the average price two months ago. Present prevailing prices average approximately $7 per box in eastern centers as compared with $7.50 a month ago and from $6.50 to $7 two months ago. Prices for the highest quality fruit have remained about stationary at from $11.50 to $12 a box.

"So far this season, shipments have amounted to approximately 26,750 carloads as compared with in excess of 42,000 at this time last year, shipments during the past month having totalled about 1700 carloads. The total crop this season will run to about 55 per cent of normal.

"Present growing conditions indicate that the crop during the next season will total about two-thirds of a normal crop, providing growing conditions remain satisfactory between now and spring.

Lemons

"The hot weather in eastern consuming centers and the fact that the stocks of Sicilian lemons are running low, have materially improved the lemon situation during the past month, increasing both the demand for the local product and prices ,present average prices ranging from $5 to $6 a box as compared with approximately $4.75 a month ago. Best grades are now bringing as high as $8 a box as compared with $7.25 during the latter part of July.

"The total 1922 crop is now estimated at 53 per cent of a normal crop, with indications that the 1923 crop will total about 75 per cent of the normal crop, providing satisfactory growing conditions are maintained.

"It is believed in some centers that there will be a fairly important abandonment of lemon acreage during the next season, which may run to as high as 2000 acres.

"Upon the whole the price situation is such that producers are optimistic with regard to prices for the remainder of this year's crop.

MONTROSE C. OF C. SELECTS SITE FOR BUILDING

Meeting Friday Night Results in Splendid Attendance

A building lot for the new Montrose chamber of commerce was finally decided upon at their regular meeting Friday night, held in Young's Hardware store.

There was a splendid attendance and the meeting was filled with interest. President Brown presided.

The new lot decided upon is situated on the east side of Montrose avenue, just north of Honolulu avenue. There was quite a difference of opinion on the location of this lot, but it was finally voted upon and carried. The lot is 40x115 feet and the building to be erected is 30x50 feet. It is planned to use it as a community center.

The advertising committee is busy these days and is doing some very good work. They have already ordered stickers to be put on machines from Montrose and Montrose name plates for automobiles. A committee was appointed to take up the matter of getting gas at Montrose. Another committee to take up the matter of the electrification of Glendale avenue was also appointed.

Mrs. Darrow, librarian, made a report in regard to the library, stating that most of the people did not realize that they have one.

Mrs. Young and Mrs. Summers rendered several vocal selections, and it was decided that the next meeting will be held Friday, September 8, when they expect to have more perfect plans in regard to the new building and they also expect a more definite report from the census committee.

DISARMAMENT TO BE DISCUSSED

GENEVA, Sept. 5.—The league of nations today planned to launch a practical world-wide disarmament program.

So strong is disarmament sentiment among the nations attending meeting here that the session may well be considered a second arms parley which will probably enlarge in scope the work of the Washington conference.

CHRISTIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL FOLKS PICNIC

One Hundred Members Enjoy Visit to Brookside Park

About 100 members of the Central Christian Sunday school enjoyed a regular old-time picnic at Brookside park, Pasadena, yesterday, and those who composed this party report one of the grandest affairs of the year.

At an early hour yesterday morning the members of the school gathered at the church, corner Colorado and Louise, from which place they motored to the park. Several members, who went early to the park, reserved tables sufficiently large for the accommodation of the entire crowd, so that when the "host" arrived it was well taken care of.

The morning hours were spent in swimming and hiking through the park, and at noon the picnickers gathered at the "home-made" luncheon. After the repast a series of races for young and old were run, these proving to be one of the principal features of the day.

Another feature of the afternoon was the baseball game between the men of the Glendale Christian church and the men of the Methodist church of Whittier. The final score in this contest is in doubt, but it is definitely known that the Whittier Methodists put it "all over" the Christian ball tossers from this place. "Why mention the score?" say the men from the Glendale Christian Sunday school.

The watermelon feed kept the youngsters of the Sunday school busy after 2 o'clock. Possibly it was planned to catch the hopefuls rightafter lunch when, it would naturally be supposed, they would be filled to capacity. However, if this idea was in the minds of the watermelon servers, they were very much mistaken, for the way those young people went through those melons was a caution. The arrangements for the day were under the direction of Floyd Mercer, superintendent of the Sunday school.

GIRARDS ENTRY IN BABY CONTEST

LOUIS GIRARD

Louis Girard, the talented and beautiful little son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard, Glendale's favorite singers, is here pictured. Louis is more boy than artist just now, into mischief and out again, loving his animal friends but teasing them a bit, too, and having a good time generally. He is just a natural little boy not too good to be true, but a great happiness to his parents, particularly his father, who is confined to his home by the injury he suffered when he fell and fractured his hip on a slippery floor at the Egan School of Music and Dramatic Art.

MUZZLE THE DOG AGAIN CITY ORDERS

Two Cases of Suspected Rabies Under Treatment by Authorities

APPARATUS SOON

Police Detail for Stray Dogs Is Active in Glendale Now

Two cases of alleged rabies are now being treated by the Glendale city health department. Miss A. Jongeneel, city bacteriologist, is in personal charge of the treatment of these cases, the Pasteur treatment being administered in each instance. Special equipment for the treatment of rabies is now being installed in the health department at the corner of Los Feliz and Brand, and until this installation is completed, the treatments are being given by Miss Jongeneel at the county hospital in Los Angeles.

Special warning is being given by the local police department against permitting dogs to stray on the streets of Glendale unmuzzled. One police officer is putting in his entire time looking for stray canines. Every dog that is not muzzled is being taken in, regardless of whether or not it has a license tag. Rabies are especially prevalent during September and for this reason the police department is clamping the lid down unusually tight on dogs during this month.

K. P.'S MOTOR TO FILLMORE TO LODGE

One Thousand Members in So. Cal. Attend Big Barbecue

About thirty Glendalians motored to Fillmore Monday to attend a big K. of P. meeting and barbecue given by the lodge of that city, to which all lodges of the district were invited. About 1000 knights were present from Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Santa Paula, Ventura and surrounding towns.

The Central lodge of Los Angeles put on at a public session, the rank of page and lesson of friendship. In a session limited to members of the order, the Pythian sisters of the Fillmore temple put on some of their work.

At the picnic a ball game was played between a Fillmore lodge team and a team made up of members of Central lodge. Fillmore winning in a score of 9 to 5.

The Glendale group who enjoyed the day included Emil Fram and family, Ralph Dosse and family, Sam Jolfo and family, Claud Berger, Henry Palmer, Frank Willette, W. J. Hibbert and family, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peters, Mr. and Mrs. John Collage and family, and others who failed to register.

INTERMEDIATE COURSES MAKE PROBLEM FOR THE CITY SCHOOL SYSTEM

Conferences of Principals Held With Superintendent Richardson D. White to Find Solution to Situation of Cerritos Eighth Grade

INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL'S ELECTIC COURSE

It Is Believed Possible to Tutor to Bring Up All the Mid-winter Graduates to Even Standard for Coming Year's Work

Principals and vice principals of the city schools had a conference with Superintendent Richardson D. White in the new headquarters of the board of education on Brand boulevard on Tuesday morning.

A good many problems were up for discussion, one being what to do with the A-8 pupils of Cerritos avenue school, who will be graduated at the mid-year semester, and who have been following the straight grammar school course of study, whereas the Wilson avenue intermediates have been following an eclectic course of study which is being established in the new intermediate at Glendale and Park avenues. It is felt that in the remaining months before they will be graduated they could hardly adapt themselves to such a change, and just how their course will be completed is to be worked out. The class numbers between 25 and 30 pupils, including two from across the line in Los Angeles territory who have petitioned to be allowed to graduate with their class. These are the only Los Angeles pupils who have been given this privilege, as the board of education of Los Angeles has built a school in the Atwater tract which will open this fall.

It may be that the undergraduates of Cerritos avenue school will be put in a room by themselves with a special teacher and tutored for the balance of the year. The B-8s from Cerritos who are to be transferred to the new intermediate will have to adapt themselves to the changed eclectic courses.

GLENDALE GETS ADVERTISING VIA PRESS-NEWTON

25,000 Listen to Concert With Delight at Catalina

The Glendale Daily Press radio broadcasting station added a great deal to the enjoyment of Labor day evening in many quarters.

On the big ships which ply between Wilmington and Catalina, KFAC was the principal attraction and thousands of people paused long enough in their tour of the big ships to hear the program.

John Duncan, operator on the Avalon, stated to a Daily Press representative that KFAC came in better than any station within his range, and that the modulation was almost perfect. He further stated that the Glendale Daily Press radio is doing a great deal of good advertising for Glendale, for no one can hear the programs without making the inquiry about Glendale, and in fact the announcement always carries with it the words, "Radio KFAC, at Glendale, California," etc.

It is estimated that 25,000 people were in Catalina during the past few days, and nearly everyone of them heard the radio programs from the Press-Newton station.

FERGUSON TELLS MEANING OF KIWANIS

Asst. Principal of High Discourses at Luncheon on Club Ideals

A. L. Ferguson, assistant principal of the Glendale union high school, was the principal speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon Friday at the Broadway Inn. His address was in the neture of an elulidation of what Kiwanis should mean to the members, and was very interesting.

"Kiwanis is what we make it," said Mr. Ferguson. "I find no set rules, except the Golden Rule, to govern our actions, and we can make our club the best or allow it to lag in interest; it all depends upon us."

Frank Kean was present and gave a few pointed remarks, which, as usual, were appreciated by the members present.

There will be no Kiwanis club luncheon next Friday, as the club will be entertained by the Rotary club on Thursday. The next meeting of the Kiwanis club will be held on Friday, September 15.

D. H. Smith was the lucky one to get the attendance prize, which was given by J. H. Wittmeyer.

Preston A. Fullen, instructor in penmanship in the commercial department of Glendale high, Mrs. Fullen and their three children, returned Friday from an auto trip covering about 5000 miles, their car well plastered with stickers, showing their stopping places, which included Sequoia national park, Yosemite national park, Crater lake, Mount Ranier, Oregon Caves, Victoria and Vancouver, B. C.

They formerly lived in Astoria, Oregon, so it was like going home. They found the roads good except where they were compelled to make detours, and camping conditions everywhere were very good. Most of the camping grounds were well equipped with water, electric light, stores and tables, somehad shower baths and a few swimming pools.

Her mother glared at her ominously.

"'Eadache, 'eadache?" she repeated in withering accents. "How many times am I to tell you not to forget your aspirns?"

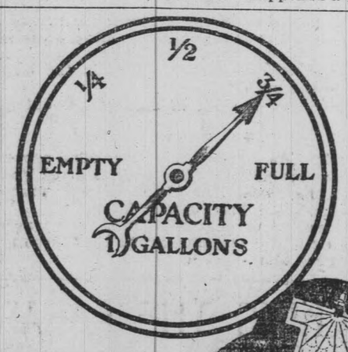
LACKED PROMPTNESS

"The man who wins," she said, "is the man who is prompt in embracing an opportunity."

"Well," he whispered, after he had slipped his arm around her, "how do I strike you as a winner?"

"Only fair," she answered. "This could have happened a month ago."



Your gauge will PROVE Red Crown's economy

Stop at the Red Crown sign the next time your tank needs filling, and then keep track of your mileage.

You'll find that "Red Crown" takes you farther on a gallon, and gives you a more powerful, sweeter-running engine.

"Red Crown" vaporizes rapidly and uniformly in the carburetor and is consumed completely in the cylinders. Every gallon is the same, wherever and whenever you buy it.

Fill at the Red Crown sign—at Service Stations, at garages, and at other dealers.

LABOR SERMON AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Carpenters' Local Attend in Body With Flying Colors

Sunday was a great day at Central Christian church. Two special services were held. In the morning Rev. C. A. Cole preached a Labor day sermon, his topic being "A Man and His Brother's Burden." A large delegation from Carpenters' Local No. 563, was present, marching from their headquarters to the church with a large American flag borne proudly aloft at the front.

The pastor set forth in plain terms the duty of employer and employe to each other and to the common country, and also stated that the church has not in the past done its full duty to the laboring man, nor is it now so doing; but it is striving to that end.

"It was the church," he said, "that showed the laboring man his privileges and led to the movements for the uplift of the toiler."

The confident prediction was made that when the teachings of Jesus are put into practical effect all differences between capital and labor will disappear.

In the evening, "Going Away to College" day was observed. There were 15 "collegers" on the platform and all but two made short talks on why they went or were going to college, what it meant to them, and what they were getting out of it. First, however, four representatives of Occidental college sang one of their class songs and then six members of the California School of Christianity, the new Disciples of Christ college on Vermont avenue, upheld the honors of their favorite in a similar manner. Then several from the southern branch of the U. of C. gave a song with whistling chorus.

The speakers were Vernor Rich, the Misses Ruby Eubanks, Ruth Gibbs, Hazel Wilder and Garnet Peters of southern branch, U. of C.; Nelson McCray, Miss Ethel Garton. Miss Genevieve Campbell, Carroll Thompson and Miss Edith Learned, of California School of Christianity; Loys Griswold, of California Technical college; Don Davis, of Kansas University; Willard Learned, of the College of Missions, Indianapolis. Miss Florence Heacock of Occidental, did her part by presiding at the piano. Miss Fern Peters of the southern branch, U. of C., and Miss Frances Musser, of California School of Christianity, were on the platform, but did not speak. Mrs. Willard Learned of the College of Missions, and Miss Bessie Jeter of Oxy, were unable to be present.

BETTY ELLEN TO SERVE TEA AT SHOP OPENING

Smart Store for Particular Women to Show Dainty Personal Goods

By BARBARA MILLER

Presenting quite the smartest in the way of women's apparel, Betty Ellen will hold her opening tea at her "shop for particular women" on Thursday afternoon from two until five, at 215 South Brand boulevard.

To the strains of soft music, four charming living models will display the latest things for fall, everything required for milady's wardrobe—lingerie, millinery, all types of gowns for the street, for tea, for evening, blouses and dainty accessories of the well-dressed woman.

A complete line of sports wear is to be carried with particular emphasis on the ever-popular sweaters of fiber, silk and wool. Several models with the new brushed-wool collars and cuffs are featured. Several New York gowns will be worn by the mannikins, beading and embroidery being most popular as trimming. The handmade blouses are another feature, and are most reasonably priced. In the lingerie, both tailored and fancy models are shown.

Milady has a bewildering variety of hats from which to choose. A number of the popular metal cloth turbans are being shown, as well as several picture hats, the larger chapeaux coming into its own once again. Sure to please are the "flapper hats," small, smart and surprising. One particular fetching model is a brunt orange and tan combination, in felt and silk. Draped veils are much used.

The salon itself is ultra modern in its decorative scheme of putty, orange and black. Opening off the main shop is a tiny gift room, where all sorts of Christmas novelties, greeting cards, and painted china are on display. Betty Ellen is to be the sole Glendale agent for Furbeck china.

LINOLEUM EXPERT FORCED TO ADD TO STORE

L. C. Davis of 210 East Broadway Finds Business Crowding

L. C. Davis, the linoleum merchant at 210 East Broadway, has been forced to either enlarge his store room or move, and preferring to remain at the old stand, Mr. Davis has decided to more than double his present floor space by the addition of several hundred feet more space. This makes the second time Mr. Davis has had to increase his space to accommodate his growing business.

He will add new machinery for making shades, put in more stock and otherwise add to his efficiency to serve the public. When Davis handles a job it will be done right. He knows his business and is growing right along.

E. G. WARREN HAS NOVEL VACATION IDEA

Changes Work and Handles Huntington Park Platform Lectures

E. G. Warren, real estate broker at 300½ South Brand, says that a change in work is the same as no work for vacation purposes. Following this idea, he spent a good deal of the last six weeks doing platform work for the Huntington Park Development Co., which had a phenomenal sale in the opening of Huntington Park addition; and for the Hoffine Middleton Co., that is offering two very fine subdivisions in the southwest district, called Western Avenue Park and Belle Mead. At the latter place, Mr. Warren was speaker of the day Labor day and those who heard him stated that he gave them much of information and entertainment along the linse of Southern California history, present conditions and future possibilities.

Mr. Warren has had much experience as a lecturer and has received flattering offers to close his real estate business here and devote his entire time to this line of work. But Mr. Warren is satisfied with Glendale as a place to live and conduct a business and states that lecturing, for a time, at least, will be only a side line.

Smith had come home later than usual and had ready a good explanation, but his wife gave him no chance, and immediately began to tell him what she thought of him.

He endured it patiently all the evening, quietly read his paper, and went to bed.

His wife continued talking. When he was almost asleep he could hear her still scolding him, but finally he dropped off to sleep.

A couple of hours later he woke up to hear his wife remark:

"Your behavior is scandalous!"

"Annie," said Smith, "are you talking again—or yet?"

Truths in Epigram

Man's best possession is a sympathetic wife.—Euripides (484-406 B. C.).

Death is not the worst evil, but rather when we wish to die and cannot.—Sophocles (496-406 B. C.).

Extreme remedies are very appropriate for extreme diseases.—Hipprocrates (460-359 B. C.).

TRAGEDY OF THE MINE

Fire in a gold mine of this state has wrought ghastly tragedy. Far in the deeps of the workings more than two score miners, cut off by the flames, have perished. To portray the courage and then the despair of the victims as the truth became known to them, were a task well not to essay. At the mouth of the pit stood wives and children, some dumb, and some vociferous with grief. This, too, is a dread picture, haunting the mind, and stirring pity to the utmost.

That all that could have been done to affect rescue was done, may be taken as assured. Nevertheless there will be close scrutiny in order to ascertain if every precaution had been taken in advance. Under the most favorable circumstances the laborers in the bowels of the earth are companioned by constant peril. They are entitled to every protection that science has devised. There is the menace of foul air, of explosions and ever the possibility of flames. To the layman it seems monstrous that a shaft by which miners move to and from their tasks may be sunk thousands of feet without some other shaft being made available as an avenue of escape.

In connection with this disaster there has been given currency to some ugly rumor. The present is too early a date for the framing of any verdict.

PROVINCIALISM

"Our constant tendency is towards narrowness. We drift to provincialism . . . And from provinciilism come our greatest limitations, and most of our delusions."

No fault is to be found with the averments quoted. They are trite perhaps, but so it most good advice. A special interest attaches to them, however, since they are from the editorial columns of a paper that year in and out preaches provincialism, and makes a fetish of isolation. The doctrine of isolation, of shutting off a part of the world from the rest, is the enlarged, concrete plan of provincialism.

It is necessary for a man to know his own country. The real New Yorker does not know his own country; is but faintly aware that he has a country. Hence if he leaves the clamor and rush of his habitat, and travels westward, he is almost an alien. He has much to learn. The people themselves, their spirit and their enterprise, dawn upon him as revelations. When the outsider visits New York, he is amazed, not at the magnitude, or the multiplicity of activities there, but at the ignorance of the resident. To the real metropolitan, Buffalo is "out west" and the actual "out west" is nowhere; less tangible than the realm of dreams.

Yet a New York paper proclaims against the provincialism it continually has fostered. It perceives harm in the doctrine that it has striven to set up as the national code.

Either it is penitent or inconsistent, or unwittingly has stumbled upon a truth.

MARRIAGE AS A SPECTACLE

To some minds it does not appear that marriage, considered in its finer aspects, should be regarded as a spectacle. Often it is an event of social importance in the particular circle to which the principals belong. It therefore becomes the reason for a considerable seemly activity. According to general belief and practice, it should be kept free of circus features. That accommodations should be provided for the curious mob (with or without payment of admission fee) is a theory not widely endorsed. Nevertheless on occasion some couples embark on the matrimonial sea in the same spirit that they might perform on the tight rope. They get a rakeoff on the proceeds. or perhaps they are inspired by the proffer of a set of tinware.

Only recently one pair took the marital obligation while flying above the clouds. At about the same time another twain donned their bathing suits and uttered their "I do's" with the water lapping their lower lips. Some have been wed while on horseback, the parson with difficulty keeping pace with them. Such exhibitions fail to impress a sense of seriousness on the part of the man and woman.

More than enough already regard marriage as a joke. To them it is a mere incident, its obligations binding if found to be agreeable; otherwise to be cast aside. The individual casting them aside generally does so with the determination already formed to go in quest of a new set of obligations. These also will be disregarded at convenience.

In the circumstances, the suggestion is natural, that so long as marriage is legalized, and its conventions understood by the majority to be worthy of respect, that the contract be not entered into with the same frivolous nonchalance as that with which one accepts a partner for a dance.

Lenine is said to have recovered his health. Perhaps he has. It may be that he never lost it. The report of his death would not create a stir, for nobody would believe it. The rumor that he is dying, of any one of a dozen ailments or mishaps, has lost all power to stir the emotions either of grief or of gratification.

General Crowder has issued an ultimatum to Cuba, threatening in case of its not being heeded, he will withdraw from the island. Crowder was acting on behalf of this government, which has full moral right to tell the Cubans that they must behave. His presence in Cuba has failed to delight some of the natives, but this has been one of its best commendations.

BILLY BOY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

It is quite true that temperance is the universal requisite—that is to say, that the great question is not what is a good thing, but how much of it is a good thing.

DR. FRANK CRANE

Most of the nuisances in the world are very good things carried to excess.

In fact, we are sometimes inclined to believe that the only sin in the world is excess.

Among the most delightful things are loyalty and devotion, which also may become very irritating. One of the most important things we have to learn in dealing with the people with whom we live is when to go away and let them alone.

Even in infancy the problem crops up. Many a mother has overdone mothering. She has literally smothered her young with her too assiduous protection. She has failed to realize that good as love and motherhood may be, there is something that is better and nearer to the child's heart, and that something is independence and the working out of one's own life.

Many a marriage has been spoiled by overdoing the matter of unity. More than one woman has lost her husband because she has not known how to give him enough rope. Any many a wife has rebelled and snapped the marriage ties simply because she had to have air. There have been men who have been literally ruined by uxoriousness. They have a strong sense of loyalty and dread to do anything that may seem like a falling off of that devotion and attention toward their wife which at the first won her affection. The foolish woman takes advantages of this and reduces a man who might have been a great figure in the world to the position of a lady's maid.

Clubs have their uses, the principal one of which is that they enable a man and wife to get away from each other long enough to rest up a bit.

Every couple need outside interests. They need separate and independent resources. In fact, the very permanence of their unity, at least the charm of it, depends upon the degree of their independence.

But we all know the man whom we do not invite to dinner because he will not come without his wife, and her we do not want. And we all know the woman who would be a very delightful member of our party if we could separate her temporarily from her husband.

There are many instances where Jane would do and many others where John would do, but Janecum-John would not do at all.

We need friends, we need a wife, a husband and children, we need intimates, but once in a while we need strangers.

The choir will now sing hymn 326:

Oh, where have you been, Billy, Billy Boy,
Oh, where have you been, charming Billy?
I have been to see my wife,
She's the joy of my life,
She's a young thing and cannot leave her mother.

Deep Water

Now ain't I in deep water?
Between just you and I,
If something right don't happen soon,
I'll be financially dry.

Without I soon get settled—
I seen no chance so far;
I'll feel as though there ain't no use,
An' go back home to Spar.

I tried to be an actress,
An artist on the stage,
Behind the footlights on Broadway,
An' get to be the rage.

But now I feel so badly,
For when I sought a call,
I found each one have got to have
Good speech or down she fall.

I'd be a secretary,
An' study hard an' long
To get a fine position here
With publishers of song.

The new work came most natchul,
But le' me tell you what;
Im out again for writin "ain't"
When 't aughter been "am not."

I ain't a bit discouraged;
Nor am I really sore;
I'm goin' down to the telephone
An' try my luck once more.

You ask how I succeeded?
The story's very sad;
They canned me while in trainin' school,
Because my speech were bad.

Now ain't I in deep water?
Enough to make you gasp?
I wisht my teachers learnt me right
Before my school days passed.

My father could have helped me;
He heard me make mistakes;
It would have done me lots of good
An' stopped me making breaks.

I wisht I'd paid more 'tention
The way I used to speak;
But what's the use of worryin' now?
I'm just a language freak!

But still I ain't discouraged;
I ain't goin' home just now;
I've found a way to get a job
An' make my public bow.

Although my speech is rotten,
I've 'complished quite a feat,
For soon I'll have my pretty face
On a speechless silver sheet.

But then I ain't contented;
It hurt to be turned down,
E'en though I'll be a movie queen
An' wear a filmy crown.

So I am goin' to study
To make my speech worth while;
An' when you hear me talk again
You're go'n' er hear some style.

THE LISTENING POST

You are walking along.
On a bright morning.
With a blue sky and the birds singing.
Prospects fine.
Health and opportunity yours.
The two most important possessions in the world.
With them you can gain all else.

* * *

Suddenly——
Slip and slide and bump!
Down on the walk you go.
Your feet fly out from under you.
And your day dreaming is done.
You are rudely awake to the trials and tribulations of this world.
For somebody threw a banana peel on the walk.
You hit it with your feet.
The laws of momentum and equilibrium and gravitation did the rest.

* * *

An awkward and distressing incident to be sure.
And your pride is hurt.
But worse than that your legs are hurt.
One of them is broken as you discover when you seek to rise.
And you are to be a cripple for weeks.
So——

* * *

Just at that time, what law or ordinance was the most important to you in its breach?
Not the law again murder.
Or against theft or arson or wine bibbing.
The most important mandate to you in its breach was a very simple ordinance.
Hidden away perhaps somewhere in the statute books.
It was the mandate against throwing banana peelings on sidewalks.

* * *

You never before thought that was very important perhaps.
You may have laughed to think that some city father presented such an ordinance.
A trivial thing.
Hardly worth cluttering up the ordinance books with.
But——
The observance of that law or ordinance would have saved you a broken leg and weeks of helplessness.
So just at that time that ordinance would have been mighty important to you if it had been observed.

* * *

There is a good deal of talk about the importance of some laws.
The minds of some people run in well defined grooves.
They see only one thing.
But it is well to remember that in time of epidemic the law providing for isolation and quarantine and sanitation is mighty important.

* * *

If you seek to cross the street and are run down by a speeding motorist and killed, the law against speeding was a mighty important thing if it had been obeyed.
For you and your family.
And if you drop five or six stories in an elevator, you will discover that the law providing for elevator inspection is important.

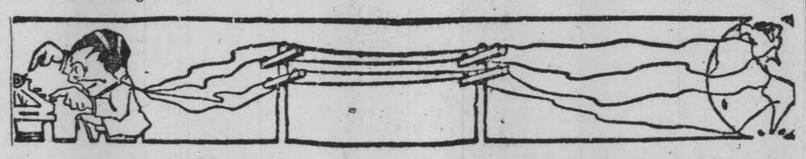
* * *

We need to get away from the idea that all laws may with safety be lightly considered except the particular law we are interested in.
It is the spirit of law observance that we need.
Whether it is the law against throwing slippery peelings on the walk or the law against murder.
Whether it is the law against cutting the button in the street intersection or the law against selling plated ware as sterling.

* * *

Let us not become a lopsided people.
Let us be a sane and reasonable people.
Obeying laws because they state the will of the majority.
And respecting, not especial laws alone, but LAW.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

Plaint—By Ebeneezer Elliot (1781-1849)

Dark, deep and cold the current flows
Unto the sea where no wind blows,
Seeking the land which no man knows.

O'er its sad gloom still comes and goes
The mingled wails of friends and foes,
Borne to the land which no one knows.

Why shrieks for help yon wretch, who goes
With millions, from a world of woes,
Unto the land which no one knows?

Though millions go with him who goes,
Alone he goes where no wind blows,
Unto the land which no one knows.

For all must go where no wind blows,
And none can go for him who goes;
None, none return whence no one knows.

Yet why should he who shrieking goes
With millions, from a world of woes,
Reunion seek with it or those?

Alone with God, where no wind blows,
And Death, his shadow—doomed he goes:
That God is there the shadow shows.

O shoreless Deep, where no wind blows!
And thou, O Land, which no one knows!
That God is All, His shadow shows.

The Little Enemies of Man

By DR. EDWIN E. SLOSSON

Early in the history of the human race man learned how to conquer the mastodon. He has yet to learn how to master the microbe. Whales and elephants are now almost extinct, but mice and flies still increase and multiply, and the bacteria, smallest and most dangerous of all, find new ways of attacking us. It is only within the last few years that man has learned which his greatest enemies are, and he has not yet found weapons against them. The explorer in tropical jungles used to fear the lions, tigers and pythons; now he protects himself most carefully against the mosquitoes, and tsetse. Mars has afflicted the human race less than Beelzebub.

Although we theoretically accept the conclusion of science that a man's foes are those of his own household, we are not yet aroused to the necessity of waging war in earnest against them. We have a secretary of navy and we give him millions for defense, but we have no secretary of sanitation, though that is a more necessary office. It is quite improbable that any American will be killed by an invading army this year, but our land is invaded by millions of mosquitoes and flies armed with deadly weapons and certain to slaughter thousands. Years of study and experimentation will be necessary before we learn how to fight our insect foes, but already enough has been done to show what can be accomplished if we go about it in the right way. Many of the sanitary measures of the past we now know to be crude, clumsy and misdirected, yet they are fixed in the popular mind and remain on our statute books. People still talk about the dangers of miasma and sewer gas, and think a deodorizer is a disinfectant.

We are far from acting up to our lights. The housewife wages war against vermin, but she does not realize that they are more dangerous than trolley cars. She gets more excited at the discovery of a moth than a fly, although the former only attacks clothing, not its contents. We have drain pipes in our walls to carry off disease, but beside them are conveniently arranged passages by which roaches can carry disease from flat to flat, so that everybody has a fair chance to catch whatever is going. Our windows are hospitably open to the malarial mosquito and typhoid-bearing fly. Over our clothing on the street cars crawl unmentionable insects carrying unmentionable diseases. In the fashionable hotel and restaurant the napery and porcelain are immaculate and the waiters are scrupulous; what goes on behind the screen and in the market is another story. We have got past the days when we kept the pig in the parlor, but we still keep the dog in the parlor, which is quite as bad. On the street we see the pet dog gnawing a decaying bone and nose the foulest spot to be found, and a moment later he is cuddled in the arms of his fair and fastidious mistress and licking her cheek. We have yet to realize that it is the dogs which are not mad that are the more dangerous. They injure more people by their kisses than their bites.

In primitive days man had to associate with the lower animals. He needed dogs and horses and he very properly made friends of them. He is now learning how to do without them, and he should, like a snob who has risen in the world, exclude them from his circle of intimates. The house is not intended as a zoological garden. Our cities will be truly habitable only when they contain no life but human life. Machinery may smash us, but it does not poison our blood, rot our bones and corrode our flesh. All creeping, crawling things are unclean. All our insects and animals are our enemies.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The great affair before the country today is the strike involving the transportation system. It has led to the climax of government intervention. The merits of this are for the courts to determine. The stage the matter has reached is precisely that which had been predicted. It was, indeed, inevitable.

HENRY JAMES

While the contention of two forces, neither in the least inclined to yield or to compromise, has continued, the people of the country have suffered losses running far into the millions, and steadily increasing. It was a burden not to be borne indefinitely. There had to be an end to the accumulating load, or such commercial disaster as the iand never had experienced was assured.

This is a rich country. It provides enough for all its urgent needs. It has great crops that rot in orchards and field or bin, or along the neglected railway.

Already the evils of transportation had mounted until they had become a baffling problem. Industry toiled to produce, and the product could not be moved save at the smallest profit, and often an actual loss to the producer. On top of this condition came the strike. On the instant every phase of a bad matter was worse.

The injunction is issued at the behest of the national administration. Whether it is possible of enforcement, whether it is wise, are subjects not to be discussed now. The die is cast and results will have to speak for themselves.

It would be folly to assert that either side to the controversy had been without fault, for the observing world knows that both have erred grossly. Together they have brought about an intolerable status that has to be met.

Probably since slavery days no administration has had to face a purely domestic crisis of greater moment.

"This building and lot is the property of the city of Los Angeles and cannot be sold by John S. Berger."

The signatures of Councilmen Criswell and Wheeler were appended. The inference to be drawn is that something done by Mr. Berger has failed to please them.

Not long ago scientists ascribed the remarkable prowess of Babe Ruth to his perfect co-ordination. His muscles acted quickly in exact accordance with the perceptions of his vision. That is, he saw the ball, and knowing just where it was, hit it.

But there is something wrong with Ruth. His muscular activities must be automatic. The suspicion grows that there is very little between his baseball cap and his chin.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

One of the first jobs I ever had was working for a bald-headed, blue-eyed old man named Dave Fisher, who had a fringe of red whiskers under his chin. These are matters of no consequence, of course, but it relieves my mind to state them. Dave gave me a job as a collector, at $6 a week.

"Make these birds pay," Dave used to say to me every morning. "And get in with your money before 6 o'clock. I need it."

I worked like a dog. I persecuted people who owed Dave money until they hoped the town would blow up before I came around again. I sat on their doorsteps and rang their bells and pulled desperate looking papers out of my pockets when I met them on the street. Then on Saturday night Dave would say:

"Pilgrim, I can't give you more than $4 this week. I'm terrible short."

Of course, I might have said to him that I would hold my entire $6 out of the money I had collected. Or I might have told him to go to Halifax or any other convenient port. What actually happened was that I took the $4, and week by week the debt of Dave to his bond slave piled up. When I had finally gone into debt all over our small town to such an extent that I could not continue to live there any longer—debts contracted on the theory that when Dave paid I could settle—Dave increased my wages to $11 a week. It was cheaper to do this than to pay me. Ultimately I got so deeply into debt that I was forced to leave town. Years passed before I could visit the old town in comfort.

There was something wrong in Dave, of course, or he would not have traded upon a boy's loyalty in that shameless fashion. But there was something wrong in me, too. It took the case-hardening processes of the world before I learned to look at my employer with a hard eye. It was necessary that I first convince myself that he needed me as much as I needed him. Too much humility is a handicap. If I had it to do over again I'd say to Dave:

"Come through—and quick. And don't try to scare me by talking about firing me. My next job might be better. It could hardly be worse."

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

LUCAS' ARE BACK FROM 2 MONTHS' TRIP IN EAST

Glendale Pennant Attracts Enthusiastic Attention in Eleven States

Jack Lucas and wife, of 1152 Campbell, the "real estaters" of 309 South Brand, have returned from an auto trip of exactly two months which was a delight from start to finish. They first had their new Deluxe Dort sedan fixed up like an Ambassador hotel suite, then swung out over the Santa Fe trail, headed for Kansas, the old home state. They camped in their own hotel every one of the 62 nights they were absent and enjoyed every minute of it. Leaving California at Needles, they sped across Arizona, detouring for a few days' visit to Grand canyon, then crossed New Mexico and the southeast corner of Colorado. When Kansas was reached they shaped their course for Woodson county, where in sleepy old Toronto, Jack's mother, Mrs. E. B. Lucas, three brothers and a sister, live. The old home town paper is run by the son of Jack's old school teacher, who larruped him good and hard on many an occasion, which accounts for Jack's model deportment now. Other cities in Kansas were visited, Missouri just touched, then the westward way was taken, through Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and Idaho into Washington. Then on the home stretch Oregon was crossed and northern California traversed. Eleven states were visited in this wonderful trip and nearly 8000 miles were covered. Roads were good in most places and only twice was a rain storm encountered. Everywhere, along the road and in auto camps, the Glendale, California, pennant attracted enthusiastic comment. Nearly every westbound auto was headed for Southern California.

Yellowstone Park was visited and the travelers found their stay there most enjoyable. When they crossed the Continental Divide in Montana they found that the grade was so steep that nearly every car had to be towed to the top by a cable. They found 12 cars awaiting the trip and theirs was the only one that went over the top with its own power.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lucas enjoyed every minute of the trip, which was one they will live over again many times in the years to come. Everywhere in the "effete east" they were struck with the marked contrast of the general sleepiness and backwardness there as compared with the great activity in all lines shown by even the smallest California cities. They came back more firmly convinced than ever that Glendale is the wonder city of the world.

THOUGHT SAMUEL A THIEF

It was the Scripture lesson. The subject was the call of Samuel. The children had sung, "Hushed Was the Evening Hymn," which describes the call. The teacher then asked a few questions, one being, "What did Samuel do while Eli was asleep?"

"Stole his watch," was the prompt reply from one of the girls.

The teacher, somewhat annoyed at such an apparently senseless answer, called for the second verse:

"His watch the Temple child,
The little Levite, kept."
Now came the child's turn.

Please, teacher, doesn't that mean that Samuel kept the old man's watch for himself?"

It has been discovered that molybdenite when subjected to light of various colors has more electrical resistance than when kept in the dark.

Cockiness is next to ungodliness.

GETTING INTO HARNESS MARKS VACATION'S END

Mothers Get School Clothes in Order and Plan Work

This is the getting-into-harness period for mothers and children. With the opening of the high school only a few days away and the grade schools but a week later, vacations must terminate and the serious business of life begin.

School clothes must be gotten ready, and for boys this is a simple matter. It would be for the girls also, could the uniform of middy and skirt be enforced. But our high school is democratic in allowing government by student body, and at the last election on the subject the girls voted for modified dress and against the middy. Their chief argument was the monotony of wearing one thing, also the hard work of keeping a lot of fresh middies for the girl who is her own laundress, the gingham or voile dress being easier to wash and iron.

One suspects, however, that the motive, old as Eden, of looking pretty for the boys, influenced the vote as much as more elaborate arguments.

For the mothers, too, it means taking up P.-T. A. work and club duties. The entrance of two new schools, the Grand View district and the Glendale avenue Intermediate, will add new P.-T. A.'s to the sisterhood, in all probability. This year Mrs. Eustace B. Moore will be president of the Parent-Teacher federation, Mrs. Leslie Tronsier being its secretary.

The enlarged activities of the Tuesday Afternoon club provide for at least two new sections, one for Bible study, which, it is hoped, will be taught by Miss Winifred Rouzee, who was heard last year in a most fascinating lecture, and another will be a young women's section, intended to promote sociability. It is always possible to secure the organization of a new section on any subject if 15 members petition for it. There has been some talk of a current topics section which would take up the questions of the day, but whether enough will enroll to make it a success has not been determined.

The building program and the ambition of the majority of club women to have the clubhouse debt reduced as rapidly as possible, will make a good many demands upon members, and may retard the formation of new sections until after the new club home is available. Work upon the building at the corner of Lexington and Central is going forward rapidly under the supervision of contractor Elmer Elliott, but it will be many months before it can possibly be ready for occupancy. In that interval many money-making projects will be put over, including the fashion revue by Mrs. Pendroy, at the Glendale theatre, this month, as her contribution to the building fund, and later, the big society indoor circus at the Elks' clubhouse.

LADIES OF EAGLE ROCK WILL BE GUESTS

L. A. Express Invites All to Attend Benefit for Legion Auxiliary

The luncheon to be given under the auspices of the Los Angeles Express at 236 South Hill street next Friday, at 10 o'clock, is planned to include a most delightful musical program. Miss Nancy Delmonico, of Los Angeles, and Miss Lucille Bellalo, of Eagle Rock, are to have charge of the program and are promising some very unusual numbers.

All ladies of the valley are invited to attend. The luncheon is given for the benefit of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion. Reservations at 35 cents a plate may be placed with Mrs. A. R. Rose, Garvanza 2649, or with Mrs. Frank E. Trindle, Garvanza 1895.

Not more than 80 can be accommodated but it is hoped to take care of the capacity of the auditorium.

'RICH MEN'S WIVES AT THE GLENDALE

Last Showing This Evening After a Three-day Run

When you get a book or a play with situations that makes you erect, all a-thrill, one minute and the next minute make you want to cry, you can tell the world you've had entertainment.

That's the effect that "Rich Men's Wives," the new Preferred Picture at the Glendale theater, has upon its audience.

This is a picture that everybody will be the better for seeing, because it has a splendid story, a theme intensely interesting and a cast that comes as close to being "all-star" as any it has been our pleasure to meet on the screen. Dramatic power and a stirring heart appeal are the dominating strains as the story unfolds. One situation, where a mother, outcast from the social position to which she was born, returns to rescue her baby son from the hands of a party of revelers using him as the butt of a joke, is one of the most impressive that has ever been put on the screen.

VISION OF IDEAL NOT ATTAINED IS TOPIC

Rev. Louis Tinning, Asst. Pastor of Presbyterian Church Preaches

Rev. Louis Tinning, assistant pastor, preached Sunday morning at the Presbyetrian church at Glendale from the words, "Not as though I had already attained."

"It seemed hard that Moses should die at the very threshold of the promised land. From childhood he had dreamed of crossing the Jordan at the head of that marching host. For this hope he had refused the throne of the Pharaohs, and had lived for forty years in the desert, when he might have been living in a palace. It was this hope that brought him back to face the insults and perils of Egypt's court. It was this hope that sustained him through those forty years of the exodus. At last, when his vision was about to be realized, God called him into the mountain to die. Imagination can scarcely increase the pathos of the record. We can scarcely repress resentment when we read the story. But when we stop to think we will know there was nothing exceptional in his experience.

"A promised land before all. And this is a promised land which we will not enter. Men are incorrigible dreamers. Before every life that rises above the mediocre there hangs a star-like hope that is never attained. Nothing is more tragic than the disparity between the splendor of our ambitions and the poverty of our attainment. A great man once observed, 'We are never what we are designed to be.' We cherish soaring ideals and then grovel in the dust. We purpose a saint and then produce a Christian full of faults. Why this life so full of withheld completions? Why is it always rounded with unrealized ideals? Would it be better to choose an ideal more easily attained and thus spare ourselves the disappointment of failure?

"We look all about us and discover that this is not a theory but one of life's inexorable laws. Give a man everything and he immediately seeks for something beyond everything. Happiness requires for its completeness the desire to be still happier. Sir Wm. Ramsay says: 'An ideal which can be realized cannot satisfy human need.' If it can be attained it is imperfect.

"May the key to this mystery not be in this, that we are never happy when standing still, but we push onward only when there is a goal ahead? He who is satisfied never tries to reach anything better. To be at its best, life must be on the stretch for something better. The highest service of every soul is born of restless aspiration.

"Struggle for the unattained is God's method for developing us. It is not the thing we achieve, but the thing we try to achieve, that determines our worth. Better leave a half-finished temple than a finished hovel. The call of life is to the impossible. 'Be perfect as your Father in heaven is perfect.'

"Many earthly visions are noble and heart-impelling. But the only vision that is worthy or adequate for the believer is that which has Jesus Christ for its aim and purpose and inspiration. Any other vision is trifling in comparison. No matter what heights we may scale, if we are following Him, there is always something more beyond."

VALENTINO IN 'BLOOD AND SAND'

New Success Comes to the T. D. & L. Theater for Three Days' Run

Rudolph Valentino's latest picture is here, at the T. D. and L. theatre today. Ralph Allan is one of the first showmen to exhibit "Blood and Sand" since its premier in Los Angeles, and the many hundreds of "fans" who have awaited its coming can now rest satisfied. Undoubtedly Ralph Allan's prediction will come true. This energetic young theatre manager has prepared for record crowds at his theatre all during the showing of this tremendous picture and advises patrons to "come early."

"Blood and Sand" is a Paramount picture, a great story lavishly produced and the cast supporting Rudolph Valentino are found two beautiful and talented women, Lila Lee and Nita Naldi.

The story is a love-romance by Ibanez, author of "The Four Horsemen."

What a lover is Rudolph Valentino.

You'll thrill at his impassioned love-making.

"'Blood and Sand' is eight gorgeous, breathless reels you will never forget," says Ralph Allan.

Plan to attend early. Remember there are thousands in Glendale who will! Above all things, do not miss it! It is one of the biggest attractions shown anywhere this season.

VETS' DAUGHTERS HOLD PICNIC

A large number from Eagle Rock attended the picnic of the Daughters of Veterans at Eagle Rock park Saturday afternoon and evening. Dinner was served from 5 to 7, and was followed by dancing at the pavilion.

Excellent music was provided and judging by the enthusiasm of those at the park, a pleasant evening resulted.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Stice spent the Labor day vacation at Balboa beach.

L. A. CHAMBER HAS STRIKING EXHIBIT

The Los Angeles chamber of commerce booth at the Pageant of Progress at Exposition park is one of the central figures of interest.

It is a miniature relief of the city of Los Angeles, with the Owen's river aqueduct in the background. The display is cleverly arranged, so that there is an imitation of daylight, followed by a gradual darkening of the scene. Then the tiny street lights are illuminated and lights appear in the buildings. Night lasts a few seconds, and then comes the dawn again.

One of the striking features of the exhibition, is the amount of traffic moving constantly on the make-believe street, driven by imaginary people. Yellow taxies, delivery cars, and fine touring cars pass and repass each other in an endless caravan. One might almost imagine them to be real, were it not for the very moderate speed they have adopted. Here is one city where a traffic officer is not necessary.

What any woman knows is that the greatest inventor is yet to appear. He will be the man who invents a way to avoid washing dishes.

PRETTIEST GIRL IN BURBANK TO BE CROWNED QUEEN OF THE MARDI GRAS CELEBRATION THIS WEEK

Beauty Contest Will Be Waged in Connection With Big Event to Be Staged Under the Auspices of Local Police Emergency Fund

QUEEN WILL BE CROWNED SATURDAY NIGHT

Work of Picking Prettiest Girl in Burbank Expected to Be Tremendous Task, Owing to the Many Eligible Candidates in This City

Picking the prettiest girl or woman in Burbank and crowning her queen of the mardi gras will be one of the big features of the program to be staged here for four days next week under the auspices of the Burbank police emergency fund.

The task of picking the prettiest girl in Burbank is expected to be a tremendous one, owing to the many eligible candidates, the selection of the mardi gras queen to be decided by votes, the voting campaign to be conducted by the members of the local police department.

The beauty contest, which will terminate with the selection of the mardi gras queen, is expected to arouse a great deal of interest and many prospective candidates are already being considered, although public announcement of the contest was not made until today.

The selection of the queen will be made on the last day of the mardi gras, which starts Wednesday and ends the following Saturday night.

The big doings in the beauty contest will be Saturday night, when the mardi gras queen will be crowned. In addition to the honors bestowed on her, the queen will received a handsome silver loving cup.

The contract for the amusements and concessions at the mardi gras were signed yesterday with C. F. Simpson, manager of the Simpson Bright Light Shows of Southern California.

Manager Simpson is to give the police fund $50 in cash at the opening date of the mardi gras for the concession rights and to give 20 per cent of the gross receipts of the rides and shows to the fund.

The entire event will be conducted on a clean-cut basis, no objectionable shows or exhibitions to be permitted. The entire program is to be carried out under the supervision of the Burbank police officers.

Official approval of the mardi gras has been given and the work of erecting the tents and platforms on the grounds have been started. Everything will be in readiness when the program opens Wednesday.

Five shows will be furnished at the mardi gras by Manager Simpson.

He also is planning to bring to the city a huge Ferris wheel, but has not decided for sure, as it is not known if it would be a paying proposition for such a short length of time.

A live pony merry-go-round will be one of the novel features of the mardi gras. Instead of the old-fashioned wooden horses, Manager Simpson will use 24 Arabian shetland ponies for the merry-go-round, which is sure to prove a big attraction for the little fellows.

While it is hoped that the mardi gras will be a financial success, thereby enriching the police fund, the big object of the entire event is to provide good, clean, wholesome amusement for citizens of Burbank and vicinity.

Take Advantage of Exclusion of Males From Park on That Day

Following the announcement that Thursday would be set aside as "ladies' day" at the new municipal plunge on Patterson avenue, the Glendale Camp Fire Girls have asked that they be permitted to use the plunge exclusively between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock on this coming Thursday.

L. R. James, superintendent, has granted them this time and they will enjoy swimming, diving, games and other sports. All Camp Fire girls should remember the time and place and be there to get their share of the fun.

GENERAL STRIKE MOVEMENT IS ON

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Movement for a general strike of the American Federation of Labor in protest against the Daugherty injunction, was started here today.

Samuel Gompers, president of the federation, will be asked in a resolution to be presented at a special meeting of the trades and labor council tonight, to call a convention in New York to consider a general walkout, it became known.

The resolution was drawn up at a secret meeting of labor leaders held here yesterday. The New York council is the largest and most powerful in the United States, having a membership of 800,000 workers.

Pledges of various locals of unions here to aid the striking railroad shop workers total thousands of dollars. It was predicted that a $100,000 war chest will be raised this week.

It was understood that process servers were here seeking strike leaders to serve notices of the injunction on them. As far as could be ascertained, none of the leaders could be located.

JIM GRIFFIN IS WINNER OF NISLE PRIZE

Rewarded With New Ball Suit for Collecting Long List of Boys Names

Jim Griffin, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Griffin, was the winner of the baseball suit with cap to match, offered in a recent contest by Ed Nisle, clothier, 135½ South Brand boulevard. This contest consisted of securing names and addresses of boys in Glendale between the ages of 6 and 16 years. Little Jim turned in 329 names, easily outdistancing his nearest competitor.

Jim came bouncing into the Glendale Daily Press office this morning, all "dolled up" in his new ball suit. He was surely the whole show, as they say, and in his new togs he looks for all the world like a "big leaguer." He's almost as proud of his suit as he is of his papa, who is Lieutenant Griffin of the Glendale police force.

BISHOP FALLOWS DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Was Head of Reformed Episcopal Church of the United States

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—The Right Rev. Samuel Fallows, head of the Reformed Episcopal church of the United States, died today from a long illness. Bishop Fallows was 87 years of age. He was the oldest living graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

Bishop Fallows contracted influenza on a trip to California and was rushed back to his home here. His condition continued to improve but he suffered a relapse yesterday from which he failed to rally.

A daughter was at the bedside.

Bishop Fallows was born in England in 1835. He moved to Wisconsin in 1848 and married Lucy Bertha Huntington of Marshall, Wis., in 1860. She died in 1916.

Bishop Fallows was made a brigadier general during the Civil war for "meritorious services."

TRIMBLE FINED FOR VIOLATING ORDINANCE

Crossed Fresh Laid Street Against Order of Superintendent

Following the trial Friday of Frank E. Trimble of 844 Rock Glen, who was charged with driving over Rock Glen when the street was closed to traffic and fined $5, Judge Curzan explained that the action was warranted by a special city ordinance covering such cases.

He said that for the past three years the city of Eagle Rock has been troubled with such cases and has been unable to take any action as the law covering such cases was a statute of the state prohibiting driving over a street or highway closed by the county road superintendent.

About six months ago the board of trustees passed a special city ordinance giving the city street superintendent authority to order traffic off a street which was being repaired. All violations of this ordinance are brought before Judge Cruzan, who was instrumental in having such an ordinance adopted. He called attention to the fact that similar ordinances are employed in every city of any size.

In Trimble's case, four feet of freshly laid oil were disturbed, and Judge Cruzan stated that the city was unable to lay it again as smoothly as it would have been had it never been disturbed.

BONUS REPORT DELAYED

MRS. ROY K. COLES,
Nee Mildred Wight.

that they had arrived after a delightful trip. Mr. and Mrs. Cole took with them a letter from Judge Harold I. Cruzan, introducing them to some of his friends there. Cruzan is a native of Honolulu and was interested when he found that they were going there

Judge Cruzan's friends invited Mr. and Mrs. Cole to go on a surf boating party and also invited them to accompany them on a trip to the Hawaiian Crater. This trip Mrs. Cole states will take a night's ride on the boat. Cruzan said that matters had speeded up some since he was in Honolulu, because that trip formerly required two nights and a day or two days and a night. He also stated that Hilo, Hawaii, is the place where he had seen it rain 24 inches in 24 hours, but he says no one had so far made any objection as to the speed.

COME EARLY

REV. PRESTON PREACHES ON SOLITUDE

Returns to Pulpit at Pacific Avenue Methodist Church

The Rev. Harley G. Preston returned to his pulpit Sunday, at the Pacific Avenue Methodist church, Glendale, and preached from the text:

"I am not alone, because the Father is with me." John 16:32.

"Why did Jesus seek the ministry of solitude?" he asked. "If I can find out why and when he sought it, it may help me to find the strengthening and calming influence of soliture in my own life.

"In all sorrow too much company is burdensome. Silence is never so golden as when we are in the presence of a soul whose trouble is new. Let us never forget that there is a silent sympathy whose healing influence may be only broken and disturbed by speech. The newly wounded spirit longs for silence, and so longs to be alone.

"Now what does a man gain by seeking solitude with God, when he is confronted by a great sorrow? Well, you know how it is when some great affliction visits a home in the shape of a business calamity or the stroke of death.

"Does it not feel as if the whole family structure is shaken, and that all things are mingled in blind confusion? I know nothing more terribly painful than that sense of bewilderment which follows the first shock of some great affliction when the mind staggers and all things appear confused and without a plan. It seems as if all things had been shaken to their very center.

"That is the moment to follow the Master's example and seek to be alone with God. Why? To look at the foundations. The things 'that are seen' may appear to be reeling, but the 'foundations of God stand sure.'

"Now, you and I are often under the necessity of making great decisions of choosing one road from many roads. We have often to take these momentous steps in the way of life.

"We are frequently led up to crises where we know that decision is pregnant with tremendous issues. How do we approach such decisions? Jesus of Nazareth spent a night with God before making a great choice ,and similar preparation is still needed by all who profess to be his own. But what is the good of getting apart with God? Why not trust one's own judgment and common sense? The Master prayed, that is enough; He would not select twelve men out of a hundred until he spent a lonely night with God. We want not merely judgment, but purified judgment; not merely common sense, but sanctified common sense.

It requires no argument to prove that a man will approach a great crisis and trial of judgment in altogether greater fitness and readiness, if he comes to it from the immediate presence of his God. In that lonely communion he will have received what the prophet so beautifully describes as 'the strength of stillness,' that strange, quieting of the spirit which is the very secret of confidence and power.fl The man who approached a decision in the 'strength of stillness'—a stillness brought about by his communion in the secret place—may implicitly trust his judgment and step out without fear. But how often we make our decision independently of God and heaven!

"How often we make our choice—a choice full of consequence—without any resorting to the secret place! Take the determination as to our calling and vocation in life. How rarely is that great decision preceded by a season of isolation with God? We know that Jesus Christ spent a whole night with Godbefore deciding as to who were to be the 12; may we not believe he spent a night with the Father before deciding to be a carpenter? I dare say we should all agree that a man should get apart with his God, and linger there long before he decides as to whether he ought to be a minister. But are we all agreed that he should do so before he decides to be a doctor, lawyer, grocer or merchant or any of the many professions or vocations? Is it a matter of indifference what some decide to be? May some men fall into their calling by chance and haphazard, while others must go to the secret place to seek the guidance of their God?

"In making a decision it is indeed true that one must use all the common sense and judgment God has given him, and circumstances and conditions will often influence a decision, but God knows infinitely more than we do, even about us, and where we are best able to serve if we earnestly ask for his guidance, He will open doors for us that no man can shut, and other doors will be closed. Of course, one cannot sit down, fold his hands and wait for God to send him his traveling orders on a silver platter. The doors of opportunity God leads us to are not always ajar. He expects us to try the knob. And even then it may mean some effort to swing open the door; but if we are sincere in our previously waiting on the Lord, the door we try will be locked against us if God does not lead that way.

"Let us settle it that no man's lot is so indifferent than it can be left to chance. Every man's vocation in life must be sought and accepted as the will of God; it is a post of honor, where we are to represent our King. I urge you, then, before making any great decision, to get apart with God. In all crisises calling for critical judgment, let our prayer be, 'Keep Thou My Feet.'"

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE LOVE THAT OVERCOMETH

When you have got a patch you want to hide
In the back of your pants and you have tried
To keep your front side foremost and then she stands you up in the corner so's you'll be
In front of all the scholars with your face
Towards the blackboard, O, the great disgrace
Is more than you can bear and when you hear
The children laugh you realize how dear
Your misbehaving cost and wish you knew
Before you did how she would punish you.

If she had sent you home you would not care,
But, Oh, to think that you are standing there
Like some huge joke because the terrible patch
That's in your trousers back there does not match
By half a mile and Amy Jones can see
The solemn emblem of your poverty
So terrible plain before her very eyes,
When in your love for her you told her lies
About your parents' wealth and now she sees
You can't be rich and wear such pants as these.

And when you go back to your seat and lay
Your head upon your desk and you don't play
When it's recess, but like a leper you
Sit all alone and don't know what to do,
To wipe out your disgrace and Amy Jones
Comes up to you and in her sweetest tones
Tells you to never mind, she loves you still,
And Oh, your haggard eyes look up and fill
With happy tears. Such love as hers will be
A guiding star all through eternity.

Babson's Letter

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Sept. 2.—With so much talk about bolshevism and radicalism one is led to believe that the world is rapidly becoming socialistic. Certainly such thoughts are evident when one reads about Russia, Mexico, and certain other countries. Roger W. Babson, however, claims that this is not true. His exact statement in an exclusive interview this week upon this subject is as follows:

"Socialism, as a party movement, is almost dead, so far as the states are concerned. It has never been at home here. It is exotic. It does not fit United States conditions and it has no great hold upon the workers of this country. The socialist leaders know this better than we do. They are ready now to combine with other people—workers, farmers, anybody who will go into the combine. Previously, they have been unwilling to hob nob with anybody except those who were willing to take the party name and party pledges. Moreover, there is a distinct tendency on the part of organized labor to rid itself of the incubus of socialism. The battle has been fought out as far as the American Federation of Labor is concerned. It has been fought out in the women's garment industry. It will be fought out whether it is necessary and the conservatives will wil.

"There remains the farmer group—the farm bloc, as it is called. This fall will probably show more of the results of the revolt of the farmer states against the conservatism of the present administration. This revolt was inevitable. Our last election was a post war reaction and the tremendous republican majorities had to come. The net results of the farmer revolt, however, probably will not justify the enthusiasm which it has called forth. After senators and congressmen have been elected to represent the farmers, most of them will continue to act about as senators and congressmen always act, after they get to be senators and congressmen. The farmers will be disappointed. They will turn away from their radicalism to other quarters.

"We have reached the extreme both of radicalism and the conservatism. We are headed for a middle-of-the-road course. The days of the extremist in any direction are about over. Now we must get busy and saw wood! The man who is busy laying brick is not going to listen to the call of the man who wants to interest him in 'isms' of any kind. The man on the wall is going to say to the agitator: 'I am doing real work and I cannot come down to you.'

"Nevertheless, we are probably going to have more of some things that a good many of us do not like. We are probably going to have more of government interference in the railroads, instead of less; and more government interference in the mines, instead of less. The drift seems to be in that direction. But we are not drifting that way on account of the theories of agitators. We are drifting that way because of the necessity of the present conditions. President Harding will see to it that the railroads run and that coal is mined, not because he is socialistic, but because the country must have trains and coal. That is all there is to it.

"That is to say, I believe that the lease of life of the soap box orator and all the rest of the frenzied exhorters of our day, may be, for the present, cut short. What we do in the next few yars, we are going to do because we want to. We are going to be governed by conditions and not by theories. The main tendency is toward a middle-of-the-road course. Most of the people will be traveling in that way. Our progress will be along that line. We are going to be confronted with the stern necessity of producing the necessities of life at costs which will attract the purchaser. That tasck will keep us all pretty busy.

"If my diagnosis is correct," concluded Mr. Babson, "this means well for investors and other interested in constructive enterprise. The captain of industry is coming back. The engineer will take the place of the agitator. Money will again be invested in railroads; public utilities will be rehabilitated and for many years to come the United Sttaes people will fertilize their fields and prepare for that next period of prosperity."

The Babsonchart index of business this week stands at 8 prcent below normal, the same as a week ago. Business usually marks time until after Labor day. During the next few weeks trade should begin to brighten up.

COMMON TOWEL IS BECOMING OBSOLETE

Unsanitary Article Is Rapidly Passing Into Discard

It is not far back in the memory of many of the present-day generation, when the common drinking cup was a part of the equipment of the public school. This was barred, finally by state laws, as it was found to be a dangerous factor in the spread of contagious diseases.

It seems to be the case, that matters regarding sanitation are never really taken care of, until placed under state law. We may all realize the wisdom of the prohibition of certain things, but until it is prohibited by law , we don't seem to make any effort to act upon our own knowledge.

Along with the banishing of the drinking cup, the state of California has barred the common towels at one time used extensively in public places. Here is what the weekly bulletin of the state board of health says about it:

"Not only has the use of the common drinking utensil been prohibited by law, but also the placing of common towels in public places has been made unlawful. This means, that the common towel has been barred from every hotel, restaurant, factory, store, public hall, railroad train, railway station, boat, or any other public place, room or conveyance in California. The use of the common towel is not only an offense against common decency, but it is also obvious that communicable diseases may be transferred from one person to another by this means. If paper towels are provided, they must be used by one person only and immediately thrown away. They should also be provided in sufficient quantity to accommodate all persons who may desire to use them. Any infractions of this law should be reported promptly to the local health officer within whose territory the infraction may be discovered."

This is the kind of protection the people of California want from their laws. This is the kind of protection that is welcomed as competent government, the government that protects the people against the evils that might result from carelessness in safeguarding the public safety. It is one of the laws that has come to stay.

"Hello, old man!' said the returned wanderer. "And how have you been making it since I left?"

"Oh. I've got in the neighborhood of $10,000,000."

"You don't say!"

"Yes, I do. I am rooming next door to a national bank."

WATCH YOUR DOGS SAYS HEALTH OFFICER

Dr. Kaemmerling Gives Notice Muzzling Ordinance Not Repealed

Dr. Gerhard Kaemmerling, city health officer, is advising all dog owners to keep a careful watch over their pets. The muzzle ordinance has not been repealed and dog owners are notified that the poundmaster will pick up unmuzzled canines during the month of September.

Rabies are prevalent during this month, according to Dr. Kaemmerling, and special care should be taken to guard against this disease. Vicious dogs should be reported to the police department immediately and when a person has been bitten by a dog the case should be reported to the health department immediately.

Under the ordinance of the city, all dogs that are allowed outside the yard or on the street, must be muzzled. When taken out on a leash the muzzle must not be discarded. Dogs must be kept tied when riding in automobiles. Failure to comply with this ordinance is considered a misdemeanor.

"Now, Clarence," said his mother, as she handed him an apple, "you must divide honorably with your little sister Nettie."

"What's honorably, mama?' he asked.

"It means that the one that divides takes the smallest piece,' was the reply.

"Well," said the little diplomat, "then I will give it to Nettie and let her divide."

The wind frequently turns an umbrella, but a borrower seldom returns it.
